Your Personal Financial Details:

This information is needed for the completion of form D81 which is required by the court if you are applying for a financial consent order. Please see our website for further background information. You do not need to provide any documents just the figures.

Your net income, from all sources, per annum:

Your assets - this includes savings, shares, saving schemes, premium bonds, insurance policies that have a value, and the value of any other property not mentioned above:

.....
.....
.....

Your pensions - this includes personal and/or pensions through work. You will need to provide a value for your pension fund called the transfer value. You should ask your pension provider for this information:

.....
.....

Your Plans for the Future:

On form D81 you will have to provide the details below -

Where you intend to live once the consent order has been made:

.....

Whether you have remarried, plan to remarry, to cohabit or plan to cohabit:

.....

Practical Points:

If your agreement includes transferring ownership of a property from one name to another name or from your joint names into one name, if that property is mortgaged you must ask your lender to agree to this. You will have to confirm on form D81 that your lender has agreed to the transfer.
